AICP and AMP have a long history with Advertising Week, the annual celebration of advertising and media in New York. This year, we are proud to bring our production expertise to the Week's entertainment events – which affords us the exclusive ability to secure tickets that are normally only for sponsors of the Week – and offer them to our members:

- AOL AMP'd UP Presented by AOL's Platform-A, and featuring OutKast's Big Boi and N*E*R*D. – This is the third year in a row we've lent our talents to the opening night concert. Includes the world premiere screening of the stunning short film "The Third Millennium: 2000 – Present."
- Yahoo! Billboard Live! – Come see the stars of tomorrow in this emerging artists showcase. Acts scheduled to appear include Carrie Rodriguez, Carter's Chord and Chief.
- Adobe Battle of the Ad Bands – Advertising agency bands and singers compete for the top spot in this popular competition.
- Facebook GenerationNext Wrap Party – The closing night festivities feature a very special performance by Ziggy Marley.

Tickets to these events are very limited, and there's no place else in town to get them. You may purchase a Premium Package, which includes tickets to all four events, or purchase tickets ala carte. All events include an open bar, and take place at the Nokia Theatre in Times Square.
